Chapter 1 by Yutyut4

The island was dark as usual. The families still did not understand the darkness of the men with the powers. Every time one of those men took a step, darkness fell instead of sunlight. Though no one seemed to know anything about this.

Kyle walked down the gravel road with a candle. He saw shadows of figures running about around him. Though when he went to shine the light on them they jumped back and laughed. "This is really annoying" Kyle thought to himself.

He and all the other people on the island had been sent here from Britain as a punishment for doing wrong. Kyle was only 17 though he was not born here. He was apart of a family of nobles. He started becoming friends with lowly people. His parents thought of this as horrid and sent him away with thousands of prisoners.

The year was 2012. The british had found a island near the equator that was large and uninhabited. Being the country they were, they turned it into a prison island. No buildings, just fending for yourself. But now it was 2018.

Over time wars began and stopped only in 6 years. Though us, on one of the society islands, were peaceful. Britain eventually forgot about us. Small groups would sail to places like the cook islands to smuggle food, drinks, supplies and even weapons back to the island.

While war burst in the US, Britain forgot about the island. Population kept growing, groups were formed, many things happened like what would happen in a regular country. We kept growing. With one of the islands, we were the only ones left. Britain. It was a peaceful message, telling them that we were still alive and heard war rumors. They instantly wanted to fight us in battle.

They forgot about us, but now they knew and wanted their island back. We told them we were neutral. That just made things worse. People started appearing. They wore blue and red robes. They walked and caused rain at first. Then their footsteps caused high tides. And now finally darkness. People have tried attacking them, though nothing works. Bullets do nothing, swords do nothing so our leaders figured there was nothing we could do.

I live here and I've been here for 4 years. The darkness doesn't seem to bother any residents anymore. All the children love it, instead of fearing it. And if you are afraid, then you learn to conquer your fears. Everyone here is accepted. Nothing harmful was dumped here before we settled so thankfully, we don't get sick often.

Suddenly a robed man jumped at kyle, but then shortly after laughed and jumped back.
